

The Anarchist Library
Anti-Copyright

Ça Ira

Le Bandit du Nord

February 9, 1890

In Paris last Thursday a meeting organized by the famous Basly¹ took place in the thirteenth arrondissement.

There was a debate, and the other famous person, Paulin May², was there to participate. It seems he was attacked with sticks and stones.

Five or six politicians were more or less seriously wounded. If only, like the two lions in the fable, they would devour each other so that nothing was left on the battlefield but their two tails, at least the people could pick them up and make a bouillon of them (pigs tails also make a very good one).

Le Bandit du Nord
Ça Ira
February 9, 1890

Retrieved on 24th September 2020 from <https://www.marxists.org/subject/anarchism/bandit/ca-ira.htm>
Originally published in Le Bandit du Nord. Year 1, no. 1.
Sunday February 9, 1890. Translated by Mitchell Abidor.

theanarchistlibrary.org

¹ Emile Basly – leader of the miners' union in the north of France

² Probably Paulin May, who defeated Basly in an election in 1889

