I want to live in a world without me and that means nowhere I want to stop being me to be what I never be to be nothing.

living in a world without me to be what he never be fill the fullness of empty I'm trapping something – can't help it to called that: myself.

I move in idiomatic spins and random poetic expressions from the list of words in the meta language.
I locked my existence in cancellation after cancellation as a poem that always fail to be written even as the one who ever stayed in anyone's minds

I want – and will live in a world without me. in an abstract about me inside someone else's rotten carcasses who I recognize as this body my negation is full as it was never there I will only exist in the world without the world and himself.
